7. Duties and Responsibilities

7.1 The duties of the Remuneration Committee are:

- 7.1.1 to determine and agree with the Board on the Company's framework of remuneration for the Chief Executive Officer, executive directors, senior management, the Company Secretary, the chairman of the Board and any other key control functionaries such as risk or compliance officers and auditors and its cost. The objective of such policy shall be to ensure that members of the executive management and key control functionaries of the Company are provided with appropriate incentives to encourage enhanced performance, to ensure that the independence and objectivity of the decision making by such individuals is not compromised or impaired by their remuneration structure and that such individuals are, in a fair and responsible manner, rewarded for their individual contributions to the success of the Company. Furthermore, an important consideration that should be taken into account in setting the remuneration of any key control functionaries in particular is that their remuneration shall not substantially be linked to the profits generated by the business or trading units whose activities are subject to monitoring and oversight by those functionaries;
- 7.1.2 to have oversight of the general remuneration policy and to review the ongoing appropriateness and relevance of the remuneration policy;
- 7.1.3 to review the design of all share incentive plans. For any such plans, to determine each year whether awards will be made, and if so, the overall amount

- 7.1.6 to approve the terms and duration of any service agreement to be entered into with any executive director, bearing in mind that an objective should be to set notice or contract periods at one year or less and that the performance related elements of remuneration should form a significant proportion of the total remuneration package of executive directors and should be designed to align their interests with those of the shareholders and to give such directors incentives to perform at the highest level;
- 7.1.7 to have oversight of, monitor and recommend to the Board the level and structure of remuneration to senior management including bonuses, incentive payments, share options or other share awards and pension arrangements;

- 7.1.14 to consider what compensation commitments (including pension contributions) the directors' service agreements, if any, would entail in the event of early termination. Particular consideration should be given to ensure that contractual terms on termination, and any payments made, are fair to the individual and the Company, that failure is not rewarded and that the duty to mitigate loss is fully recognised;

- 7.1.15 in early termination cases where the initial contract does not explicitly provide for compensation commitments, to tailor its approach (within legal constraints) to the circumstances. The aim should be to avoid rewarding poor performance, while dealing fairly with cases where departure is not due to poor performance and to take a robust line on reducing compensation to reflect departing directors obligations to mitigate loss;

- 7.1.17 to ensure that all provisions regarding disclosure of remuneration, including pensions, are fulfilled;

- 7.1.20 to provide information relating to the overall remuneration policy and strategy of the Company to be included in the annual report in order to demonstrate that the remuneration, particularly of the executive Directors and senior managers, in order to properly link the rewards to corporate and individual performance and outcomes, and to ensure that any performance-based remuneration granted is structured in such a way so as not to induce inappropriate risk taking by any such individuals; and
